

The Covid 19 ‘vaccines’, are NOT:

The injectable products, claimed to provide immunity from Covid 19, are genetic therapies with a novel delivery system, and are NOT vaccines:

The so-called covid 19 vaccines currently being forced upon the Australian public, are definitionally not vaccines at all. The scientific definition of a vaccine is: ‘Therapeutic material treated to lose its virulence, and containing antigens derived from one or more pathogenic organisms, which upon administration to humans, or other animals, will stimulate active immunity and protect against these or related organisms’. They are instead mRNA substances, which are NOT derived from living organisms. The ‘m’ is for memory or messenger, ribonucleic acid. The RNA has its sequence of nucleotide triplets (individual components of the nucleic acid) determining the linear condensation of amino acids, and forms a protein molecule, which can hold genetic information, but is in addition, the primary agent for transferring information from the genome to the protein machinery of the cell. Thus, it is engineered genetic material, intended to operate at the cellular level, and detect this specific virus. No such anti-viral has ever been shown to work, or even survive the extensive in vitro and in vivo research and testing required, which can extend to seven years in duration.

Bob Kemnitz A.M.I.E. Aust.