

After reviewing the often-censored information, I realised that I was not at risk of severe outcomes from COVID and decided against the COVID jab. Due to the vaccine mandate, I was not able to attend some places, especially my workplace. I decided to live off my savings while waiting for the truth to prevail. I had COVID and was well-prepared with vitamins etc. - it wasn't worse than the cold/flu. I do not believe I had any recurrence of COVID ever since. I have heard so many young healthy people suddenly suffering serious health issues like myocarditis after taking the COVID jab. I do not regret my decision.

The scope of this inquiry excludes actions taken unilaterally by state and territory governments. However, most of the government handling of COVID was abdicated to state governments, therefore this inquiry is unable to address the important issues. Nevertheless, the federal government should have taken more leadership over the COVID response. The federal government response to COVID was unprincipled and massively failed to minimise the damage to public health and the national economy. The government COVID messaging encouraged mass panic and was essentially vaccine propaganda.

Why wasn't natural immunity encouraged for young healthy people who are not at risk? Natural immunity was not even acknowledged. Why didn't the government advocate for basic healthy lifestyle habits like healthy eating, vitamins, exercise etc.?

Why weren't safe, effective, cheap, readily available generic drugs like Ivermectin permitted for treating COVID?

Why did the TGA approve "vaccines" that did not go through the standard rigorous trials? The TGA surely knew that these experimental "vaccines" would be mandated for many people. Why wasn't there informed consent regarding the experimental COVID jabs?

Why did the federal government risk so much taxpayer money on these experimental jabs that turned out to be neither effective nor safe?

How could the federal government allow basic human rights like bodily autonomy and freedom of movement to be violated on such a large scale?

COVID isn't really new. Back in the early 2000s, was there not a threat of SARS? Didn't Tony Abbott develop a plan to manage such a situation?
