

Detention especially isolation of the elderly and family separation, prevention of access to oxygen, coerced injection of substances, censorship of facts, repetition of fear propaganda, among other measures enforced by Australian representatives and public servants contravened Australian and international laws and basic science (let alone common sense), and has resulted in serious adverse social fractures and detrimental health conditions as personally witnessed, especially in aged care.